Connecting from off-campus

Connect from off campus

About accessing materials while off campus

UC Berkeley students, faculty, and staff who are off campus can still access licensed materials via the following resources.

Library proxy

When you click on a resource link found in UC Library Search or Databases A-Z, you will be prompted to authenticate. You may authenticate via CalNet, or via your Patron ID / PIN.

When you click on a resource link found via a search engine or a non-UC Berkeley library webpage, you will need to use a browser bookmarklet to access the licensed resource.

VPN (Virtual Private Network)

Download the campus VPN client to access licensed article databases, e-books, and e-journals. To access Library resources, pick the Library Access and Full Tunnel option.

These resources require VPN for off-campus use:

- BrowZine for iOS and Android
- Luna Insight
- Java client in UC Image Service
- Connect function in EndNote

Conditions of use and licensing restrictions for electronic resources

Databases: Articles, Newspapers, and More

These range from having a more general scope to focusing on a very specific topic.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL guides.lib.berkeley.edu/dem. The browser's address bar and tabs are visible at the top. The Berkeley Library logo is prominently displayed on the left side of the page. The main heading is "Demography: Quick start", with a subtitle "Resources for research in demography". Below this, there is a navigation bar with several buttons: "Quick start" (highlighted in orange), "Get Books", "Get Articles", "Get and Manage Data", "Do a Lit Review", and "Manage Citations". The "Quick start" section contains a quote from Samuel Preston: "With their careful attention to issues of measurement and data and their orientation to aggregate-level processes, [demographers] have provided valuable insights into many important issues." - Samuel Preston. To the right, there is a section titled "UC Library Search (short version)" which features a large blue circular graphic with the UC Library Search logo. The page is clean and professional, with a clear focus on providing research resources.

Finding Library-Licensed eBooks

The Library buys and subscribes to both individual eBook titles and collections of eBooks available to campus-affiliated users and members of the public using public-access computers in the Library. Those eBooks appear on various platforms--such as Springer, ebrary, EBSCO, and Safari--but you can find eBook titles using the Library's main search tools:

- UC Library Search is the University of California's unified discovery and borrowing system.
- Browse our full list of eBook databases. If you want to search for eBooks in a specific discipline, or those published in a particular time period or place, you might want to search a specific eBook database directly.

Research Methods Research Guide

Library Research Guides : Subject and topic guides with links to useful resources

Research Methods guide: <https://guides.lib.berkeley.edu/researchmethods>

The screenshot shows the UC Berkeley Library website. At the top, there are navigation links: "ASK US", "LOG IN TO YOUR LIBRARY ACCOUNT", "HOURS AND MAPS", and "CONNECT FROM C". The Berkeley Library logo is on the left. The breadcrumb trail reads: "UC Berkeley / Library Guides / Research Methods--Quantitative, Qualitative, and More / Overview". The main title is "Research Methods--Quantitative, Qualitative, and More: Overview". Below the title is a search bar labeled "Search this Guide". A row of tabs includes "Overview" (selected), "Quantitative Research", "Qualitative Research", and "Data Science Methods (Machine Learning, AI, Big Data)". Below these are three more tabs: "Text Mining and Computational Text Analysis", "Evidence Synthesis/Systematic Reviews", and "Get Data, Get Help!". The section "About Research Methods" contains two paragraphs. The first paragraph states: "This guide provides an overview of research methods, how to choose and use them, and supports and resources at UC Berkeley." The second paragraph quotes Patten and Newhart from the book Understanding Research Methods: "Research methods are the building blocks of the scientific enterprise. They are the 'how' for building systematic knowledge. The accumulation of knowledge through research is by its nature a collective endeavor. Each well-designed study provides evidence that may support, amend, refute, or deepen the understanding of existing knowledge...Decisions are important throughout the practice of research and are designed to help researchers collect evidence that includes the full spectrum of the phenomenon being studied, to maintain logical rules, and to mitigate or account for possible sources of bias. In many ways, learning research methods is learning to make these decisions." A third paragraph begins: "The choice of methods varies by discipline, by the kind of phenomenon being studied and the data being used to study it, by the technology available, and more. This guide is an introduction, but if you don't see what you need here, always contact your subject librarian, and/or take a look to
